To whomever it concerns

Respected Sir/Madam,

This is Sona, the product manager at Pinaca Technologies, and I am extremely pleased to recommend Shakthi to your institution. Shakthi has been working as a part of our design team, contributing as a UI & UX Designer. I interviewed Shakthi when he applied for an UI/UX role at our company. He expressed an open-minded interest in Designing rather than a narrow Mobile or Website Platform, unlike several Designers in the market.

The initial impression pointed out that Shakthi is open to contributing to our company in whatever way possible and wherever possible; such flexibility is a great sought-after trait in the industry. Shakthi's understanding of designing as an art of understanding humans and resonating with their mental expectations of interaction through designs was the best impression a designer could have made during the interview. Shakthi viewed his responsibility and skill as a tool for communicating our products to the customers and making the interaction intuitive, rendering a manual or sales call unnecessary.

Aesthetics, a word associated with creative artists, is an apt word for expressing our beta customer's feedback on Shakthi's designs. His working habits are very pleasing and easy to mutually understand the expectations and deliverables. This is a great indication of his discipline because initially, working from home leads to several miscommunications in the industry when onboarding new interns. However, I vouch for Shakthi's ability to comprehend, clarify, and confirm the requirements.

During his time at Saptang, Shakthi's performance and contributions at work leave no space for complaints and have been fine art. He designed dashboards for several of our products that are both consumer-facing and critical to our company. Additionally, I vouch for Shakthi's personality when it comes to helping; he is available, understands, cares, and helps anyone who needs him.

I take pride in saying that Shakthi didn't fail in any of the judgments and worked to serve the company's and his colleagues' interests. In addition to all the positive personality traits, Shakthi did a commendable job on all the assigned tasks. We never had to follow up on the deliverables once assigned to Shakthi, and he does all the homework to understand our competitors and read up on the necessary information to design suitable solutions.

As a mentor to Shakthi, I am confident he will be a great candidate for the any jobs/programs he is applying for. I guarantee that he is a nice person and easily fits into a new space. His design skills are impeccable, and there is no single event where we had to express or communicate any disappointment. I would be happy to provide additional information about Shakthi's professional capabilities.

Thank you,
Sona SE
